LITTLE LEAGUE BASEBALL

Carbon White Sox were determined to win against Three Hills but the Three Hills boys gave them all they wanted even though the score was 9-3 for Carbon. Barry Boese pitched good ball but was a little tied due to a previous game this week. Ron Permann worked the first three innings and Don Metzger hurled the last three. Yogi Stubbart and Ron Permann proved to be too strong on the stick for the small but willing Three Hills outfit. Yogi drove in four base runs.

Attractions at Regina Provincial Exhibition July 27 - August 1

Leo Carrillo, who portrays the gay caballero Pancho in the popular "Cisco Kid" television series, will be one of several show business personalities to be seen at the Provincial Exhibition in Regina this summer.

Others scheduled to appear during the week of July 27th to August 1st include The Deep River Boys, internationally famous singing group; Gordie Tapp, Bob Goulet and Juliette, stars of CBC television shows, and Johnny Mack Brown, cowboy star of many Hollywood westerns.

To strengthen the entertainment program in other directions, two special free displays have been arranged; one commemorating the 50th Anniversary of powered flight in Canada, will have the original Silver Dart aircraft on view. The other, an Eskimo exhibit, will provide Fairgoers with a closeup of an igloo and the way of life of the Canadian Eskimo. The powered flight exhibit will be tied in with Fair week appearances of the famous Golden Hawks of the Royal Canadian Air Force. The group, formed as part of the RCAF's observance of its 35th Anniversary and the 50th Anniversary of powered flight, will present exciting aerobatic flying displays over the Exhibition Grounds.

Another big item at the Fair will be the Barnyard Zoo. Introduced as a children's attraction at last year's show, it drew as many adult visitors as it did youngsters and proved to be the most popular feature on the week's program. Repeated by popular demand, the Barnyard Zoo will again give the little ones and their parents an opportunity to visit eye-to-eye with scores of farm and domestic animals. And there's no charge at all.

Planned especially to appeal to the children is the personal appearance of Leo (Pancho) Carrillo, the Cisco Kid's pal. A colorful veteran of the stage and films and a good will ambassador for the state of California, Carrillo will be on hand for the Provincial Exhibition's first two days only. He will appear in the Children's Day parade on Monday, July 27th, and at the free Monday morning grandstand show following the parade. His many fans will have several other opportunities to see and hear him during his two-day stay.

The Deep River Boys, starring leader-baritone Harry Douglass, will sing nightly in front of the grandstand as stars of the Barnes-Carruthers revue. Noted for their personality, humor and rhythm,

Too many apples

—THE CANADIAN,
Camrose, Alberta

Recent reports from the B.C. fruit country indicate that the fruitgrowers have some six hundred thousand boxes of surplus apples from the 1958 pack. All this in the face of the improved job of selling the industry has done over the past couple of years. People got out of the way of eating apples when price was held up to twenty cents a pound and more and it was hard to get them back in the groove again. Last year's apples were the best seen on the prairie markets for many a year, so much of the surplus may yet find its way into the ever welcome apple pie.

they will offer standards, novelties, spirituals and popular hit songs. For years they have played to capacity audiences on their annual tours of the United Kingdom and Scandinavia. A royal command performance in 1952 and a White House appearance in 1955 are among the high spots of their successful career.

Canadian television stars Gordie Tapp, Bob Goulet and Juliette are being brought to Regina by CKCK-TV and will be in the city during the third and fourth days of the Fair, July 29th and 30th. They will make appearances at the Exhibition, including a 20-minute program on each of the two evenings, just prior to the regular grandstand show.

Cowboy star Johnny Mack Brown, will be featured on the Royal American Shows midway. A former All-American football player, he started his screen career in 1927 and from 1940 on he was predominantly in westerns. Between 1942 and 1950 he was voted in annual polls one of the best money-makers in cowboy pictures.

Happy days are here with Blue Jay Cares will go away with Blue Jay

In its original form, this little couplet refers to a corn plaster, but when over 3,000 people in Saskatchewan and other parts of the world hear the name Blue Jay they think of their nature magazine published by the Saskatchewan Natural History Society. By the time you read this, the June issue of the Blue Jay will be off the press. In it you will find many articles of interest because in spite of wind and dust there are still plants, birds and other living things to observe this spring.

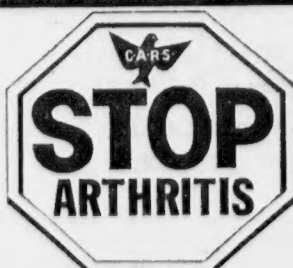

Since "the time of the singing of birds is come" you might like to hear about a few of the items concerning the feathered population which can be found in this Blue Jay. The editorial deals with the danger to birds and other wild life of the widespread use of sprays and other insecticides. An item about the dance of the Sharp-tailed Grouse written by Thomas Blakiston in 1863 concludes: "I should like to see a competent artist take this subject in hand". The "competent artist", Mr. Fred Lahrman, has illustrated the article. Other articles deal with longspurs, the pairing of Mallard hens with Pintail and Green-winged Teal drakes, etc. Notes containing observations made by readers are printed since these may be valuable records of the occurrence or behaviour of birds or animals. Just now the society is campaigning for protection for hawks and owls and comment is invited on this topic from the readers.

Since the magazine is named for a bird, one might expect that all items would be about birds; this is not so as we realize when we note the articles on mammals (bats are featured this month) and also the information attractively presented by Keith Best and Archie Budd about plants which may be used for "greens". Two other plant items deal with the Sparrow's-egg, Lady's Slipper and the Peach-leaved Willow.

The June issue of the Blue Jay always contains information about the summer meeting of the society; this year this event will take place in the Moose Mountain Provincial Park on June 12-14. Two articles about the area are included in the announcement as well as the programme of events. All members of the society (i.e., subscribers to the Blue Jay) and their friends are welcome. There have been over 100 people at these meetings the last few years and everyone goes home refreshed by hikes in interesting country and encouraged by friendly discussions with other enthusiastic naturalists (of every kind).

Even if you just like to read books about nature you will enjoy this magazine, for each issue contains book reviews pointing the way to worthwhile publications. Anyone wishing to join the Saskatchewan Natural History Society may do so by sending only $1.00 to Dr. George Ledingham, Editor of the Blue Jay, 2335 Athol Street, Regina. We know you will enjoy the "chatter" of this particular Blue Jay!

Hotels -- Vital asset in any community

The importance of the hotel industry, an importance which often was not recognized until disaster, such as fire, hit a community, was emphasized by Hon. Clarence M. Fines when he spoke to the annual meeting recently of the Hotels Association of Saskatchewan. Mr. Fines, who is provincial treasurer and responsible for the administration of the Liquor Act, has been closely associated with the hotel industry for the last 15 years and has an intimate knowledge of the intrinsic value of the hotel industry.

Pointing out that in the last few months fire had destroyed hotels in several localities, Mr. Fines said that at some of these points the rebuilding of the hotels had been dictated by public opinion which realized that to progress and be a live community it was necessary to have a first class hotel operating in that community. He said that at some points hotels had been rebuilt "simply because the people of the community insisted upon it". At 14 other points hotels which had burned down had not been replaced, notwithstanding that citizens in those centres had endeavored to get someone interested in putting up a building. The citizens fully recognized the immediate importance of a hotel to any community, but those with money were not anxious to build a hotel in view of high construction costs and uncertain returns from their investment.

Mr. Fines, who has a national reputation as an outstanding finance minister, said: "It would be questionable if any kind of a return on the investment could be made on new hotel construction in some communities, but once again I would like to point out that where new hotels have been constructed it has been because of the insistence of the people of the community".

Mr. Fines then emphasized, "I believe they are the ones who appreciate so much the value of a hotel to a community".

The convention marked the sixteenth occasion Mr. Fines had addressed the hotelmen since he became provincial treasurer. In that period he has often taken the opportunity to take the hotelmen to task for what he considered inadequacies in hotel operation. On occasion he has praised the industry, and because of his wide knowledge of the industry and its operations his remarks at the recent convention were considered a great tribute to the hotel industry of Saskatchewan.

Said Mr. Fines at another part of his address: "I consider that 90 percent of the hotelmen are doing their best to live up to the Liquor Act", an opinion which was endorsed by George G. Grant, president of the Hotels Association of Saskatchewan and managing director. Mr. Grant took the view that much of the criticism of beer parlor operation could be assessed directly to the old act which prevented decent operation of the parlors.

It was also interesting to note that the Regina chief of police told the convention that in his opinion increased liquor outlets would inevitably result in better temperance conditions. That, he said, had been the result wherever liquor outlets had been broadened.

But returning to Mr. Fines, it should be noted that he time after time spoke of the value of hotels in smaller communities. "I think you people are in a very great industry, a very important industry", he said. "Hotels do so much today to develop our communities and to foster tourism. The hotels provide the headquarters where many of our civic and club functions take place and, of course, they provide employment for local residents. I sometimes think we don't appreciate the importance of the hotels. All too often it takes a disaster before the hotels are really appreciated."

A good hotel, said Mr. Fines, was a source of pride to a community. It was the hub about which much of community endeavor revolved and the disappearance of hotels in some centres was clearly reflected by steadily decreasing importance of that community and by loss of trade.

A well-run hotel was an asset of real importance in any town or village. Its value, said Mr. Fines, could not be over-estimated.

Nearly 450 hotelmen attended the convention, the best attendance since the H.A.S. was reorganized 26 years ago.

Million a week — that's more than I expected

—THE GAZETTE, Grand Forks, B.C.

Grand Forks businessman Joe Armstrong got stopped short by one applicant for a job that he was interviewing earlier this week. The young fellow wanted a job after school and on Saturday.

"Why do you want a job?" asked Joe. "I want to make some money," was the reply.

Reasonable answer thought Joe. I'll give another question.

"What would you do with a million dollars?" asked Joe.

"Gee Mr. Armstrong, I didn't think I'd be getting that much to start with," was the candid answer.

"You'd better come back in the summer," concluded Joe and the nine year old would-be worker, walked sadly out the door.

Hospital Disaster Institute

Thirty hospitals from the provinces of Saskatchewan and Manitoba will take part in the eighth federally sponsored Hospital Disaster Institute which is to be held at the University Hospital in Saskatoon, Sask., on May 28 and 29. Under the sponsorship of the Civil Defence Health Service of the Dept. of National Health and Welfare, the Institute is designed to assist hospitals in preparing plans which will make it possible for them to cope with disasters and treat mass casualties effectively.

The Hon. J. Walter Erb, Minister of Health for Saskatchewan, and Mayor S. Buckwold of Saskatoon, will be attending the opening session of the Institute. Dr. D. Piercey, executive director of the Canadian Hospital Association and J. O. Probe, Civil Defence Co-ordinator for the province of Saskatchewan, are scheduled to address the group on keeping the plan functional and integrating it into community planning for Civil Defence.

Besides the Saskatoon hospital, the Union Hospital of Rosetown, Sask., will be actually participating in the Institute. Both hospitals have completed disaster plans and will present them for study. Dr. A. L. Swanson, and R. F. Myers, Administrators for the University and Union hospitals respectively, will be in charge of the presentations. Dr. E. J. Young, deputy director of Federal Civil Defence Health Service, will be general chairman of the Institute.

An estimated 100 persons are expected to attend the Institute, representing hospital administrators, chiefs of medical services and directors of nursing services from the invited hospitals. Previous institutes have been held at Windsor, Toronto and Hamilton in Ontario, Halifax in Nova Scotia, Victoria in British Columbia, and two in Montreal, Quebec, for English and French-speaking hospitals.

A highlight of the Institute will be the night demonstration of the actual admission of casualties. Fifty simulated patients will be used in the scheme to test the practicality of the disaster plan evolved by the University hospital. All those attending the Institute will act as observers during the exercise.

Buying Canadian

(The Review, Weyburn, Sask.)

A Canadian manufacturer of steel pipes and tubes, keeps his product as Canadian as possible, through a special procedure which requires its suppliers to state on all quotations whether materials offered are Canadian-made.

One of the results has been that while 54 percent of the steel tubes and pipes used in Canada in 1957 were imported, this situation has been altered considerably.

In placing their own orders, Canadian buyers cannot help but be influenced by the fact that their prospective supplier would, were the situation reversed, give them preference over foreign competitors.

Buying at home pays off—and this applies not only to goods manufactured in Canada, but on the local level, to goods and services offered by local businesses.

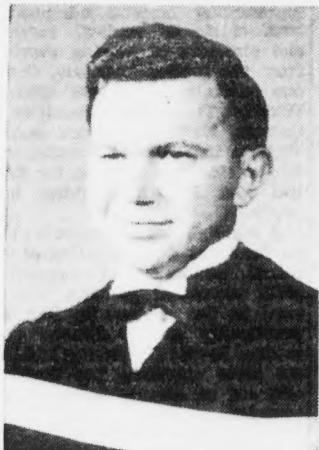

Public works and services in our community are provided out of money spent here.

Colleen

to see Jamaica

—THE EASTERN ONTARIO REVIEW, Vankleek Hill, Ont.

By Phyllis Wilson,
Citizen Staff Writer

When Colleen Campbell, five-year-old Mutchmor Public School kindergarten pupil, visits Jamaica in a few weeks she is going to hunt monkeys—she says.

Colleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. (Bert) Campbell of 291 Holmwood Avenue, Ottawa, won an eight-day all-expenses paid trip to the Caribbean island for herself and one of her parents by proving to be a highway traffic safety "expert".

Colleen, with some fine coaching from her father, answered correctly all 50 questions based on the new Ontario Driver's Handbook in The Citizen's quiz. She was the only one of some 600 Ottawa area boys and girls attending classes to and including Grade 8 who did not make a single mistake.

Sculptor Frances Loring

Art on a Grand Scale

For more than 30 years Frances Loring has been one of the outstanding figures in the small but growing circle of Canadian sculptors. Born at Wardner, Idaho, in 1887, Miss Loring came to Canada in 1912 and has made her home in Toronto, Ont., ever since. In 1928 she helped to form the Sculptors Society of Canada, and in a struggling young nation, where the way of the artist has not always been easy, Frances Loring has worked with courage and vision to help build those artistic traditions, and especially an interest in sculpture, which would give the vigorous young country of her adoption both a sense of history and an awakening sense of its own destiny. Today, at 72, the Grand Dame of Canadian Sculpture is at the peak of her powers and in recent years she has received a wide variety of honours from distinguished universities for her long and devoted service to the arts in Canada.

For many years Frances Loring has made her home and studio in an old converted church whose high-ceilinged rafters provide ample room for the heroic scale monuments which she enjoys working on. She has created stirring war memorials for Canada's dead in two world wars.

Ewe gives birth to three heavyweights

—THE BULLETIN, Brooks, Alta.

What with two pairs of different twins on one ranch, more twins than usual on others, the animal world this spring seems more prolific than ever.

On top of all the twins, Sven Bayer brings us word that a four-year-old ewe gave birth to triplets recently. The weights of the lambs were eight pounds, eight and one-half, and ten and one-half pounds, for a total of 27 pounds.

That's a real achievement, considering that a ten and one-half pounder could be declared a heavy-weight!

School and taught for a year at South Frobisher, Saskatchewan. In 1952, he graduated from the University of Saskatchewan with his Bachelor of Education degree and became principal of the school at Markinch.

In 1955, he graduated from the School of Social Service Administration, University of Chicago, with his Master of Arts degree in Social Work.

Mr. Heinemann has gained experience in social casework with the children's Aid Society, Saskatoon, where he worked with juvenile offenders and with the Lutheran Family Service, Chicago. Immediately prior to his new appointment he was with the Family Service Bureau, Regina.

He is married and has three young daughters.

Hospital has poison centre

—THE SUN, Swift Current, Sask.
Nine cases of child-poisoning were reported in the city last year, according to Health Region statistics. All five boys and four girls involved were under five years of age and received treatment in the emergency ward specially equipped to handle such cases.

The emergency ward is equipped with antidotes for all types of poison, as well as stimulants and drugs which are sometimes necessary when a patient goes into a shock condition. Oxygen and suction equipment as well as a tank of carbogen for carbon monoxide cases, are also kept within reach for emergency service.

Helen Talpash, matron of the Union hospital, said there is always a graduate nurse on duty in the emergency ward, and a chart of antidotes for all known poisons. Only once has it been necessary, she said, for a doctor to consult the poison-control centre at Regina, which speaks well for the hospital service in this regard.

Dr. Robert Bradley, Regional medical health officer, said, there are two poison-control centres in the province, one in the Regina General hospital and the other in the University hospital at Saskatoon. Both are on a 24-hour service basis.

From carefully indexed materials, physicians on duty at those centres can give any information on the ingredients or toxic substances in any preparation, Dr. Bradley said.

Quoting Dr. Stanley Best, director of child health, Bradley said: "Considering there are now some 1,150 household preparations available of which the formulas are manufacturers' secrets, the information available at these centres can be of vital importance to a physician treating a case of poisoning."

Dr. Bradley said he could not over-emphasize the importance of keeping both medications and household preparations out of reach of youngsters, especially those of one to four years.

Spruce budworm checked in eastern forests

The attack of spruce budworms on the forests of New Brunswick and Quebec has been halted by a $15,000,000 spraying program, reports Dr. F. E. Webb of the Forest Biology Laboratory, Fredericton, N.B.

Dr. Webb said that spraying began in New Brunswick in 1952 and in adjacent parts of Quebec in 1954. An area of 9.3 million acres was treated, most of it twice.

Dr. Webb estimated that a tree-killing outbreak has been put off for four or five years at least and that stands of fir and spruce extending over 15,000 square miles were saved.

He recommended spraying every other year to keep susceptible forests alive indefinitely. Describing the spraying, Dr. Webb said it was used only in areas where the trees would die if treatment was delayed.

Spraying timing

Timing of the spraying was a compromise between an early operation to save as much as possible of the current year's foliage; and a late operation to achieve the maximum kill of larvae. Spraying elsewhere has generally started earlier in the budworm outbreak using twice the dosage of DDT and commencing late in the feeding period of the insect with the main objective of the maximum kill.

Dr. Webb said the forests had been preserved and the attack destroyed, proving that starvation and the death of the trees were not necessary to defeat a full-scale budworm outbreak. The success of the spray timing also showed that the outbreak had not been prolonged by preserving the food supply for the larvae.

Biological change

"A new biological situation appears to have been created by preventing the budworm from reducing the susceptibility of these forests in the natural way," commented Dr. Webb. "Since the mature forest condition that initially proved favorable for outbreak development remains largely intact, the question arises: how soon will the next outbreak develop?"

"It seems reasonable to expect that outbreaks may tend to recur at somewhat more frequent intervals than if they also depended on the regrowth of the forest to the mature condition . . ."

The problem will be lessened by using balsam fir as it matures.

There had been no evidence that the spraying adversely affected the natural control complex and some parasites and possibly some predators appeared to gain in effectiveness from the spraying.

There was evidence of damage to fish and aquatic insects. Losses in immature stocks of Atlantic salmon may be reflected in reduced runs returning from the sea in 1961, said Dr. Webb.

Premier Douglas speaks at beginning of construction of South Sask. River Dam

"The building of the South Saskatchewan River Dam can be a turning point in Saskatchewan's history. With its completion I feel confident that this province will move forward to the high destiny which we all believe lies ahead," Hon. T. C. Douglas, Premier of Saskatchewan, said at ceremonies marking the beginning of construction on the dam.

"The South Saskatchewan River Dam constitutes the largest and most expensive single project ever undertaken by the province of Saskatchewan," the premier said. Referring to the federal-provincial agreement on the project he noted that while the federal government will pay 75 percent and the province 25 percent of the costs of the reservoir itself, the province will pay 60 percent of the costs of the total project, or about $110,000,000. "This will be a worthwhile investment," Mr. Douglas said. "It will provide future generations with a greater measure of stability and tremendous opportunities for expansion and development."

"The future of Saskatchewan," he said, "depends on our ability to diversify and stabilize our economy." He then pointed out the many advantages to industry and agriculture of the new power and water resources to be developed.

In reviewing the past history of the dam the premier said: "The idea of a dam on the South Saskatchewan River has been tantalizing the imagination of the people of this area for 100 years. A report written by a surveyor from Toronto in 1859 recommended a dam at almost the same point, a dam 85 feet high and 600 to 800 feet long, which would provide uninterrupted navigation for steamers of large size for a distance of 600 miles."

Premier Douglas noted that while navigation was the chief thought in the minds of the planners of 1859, "today we are building a multi-purpose dam to provide water for irrigation and industry, urban water supply, power, and sites for recreational development."

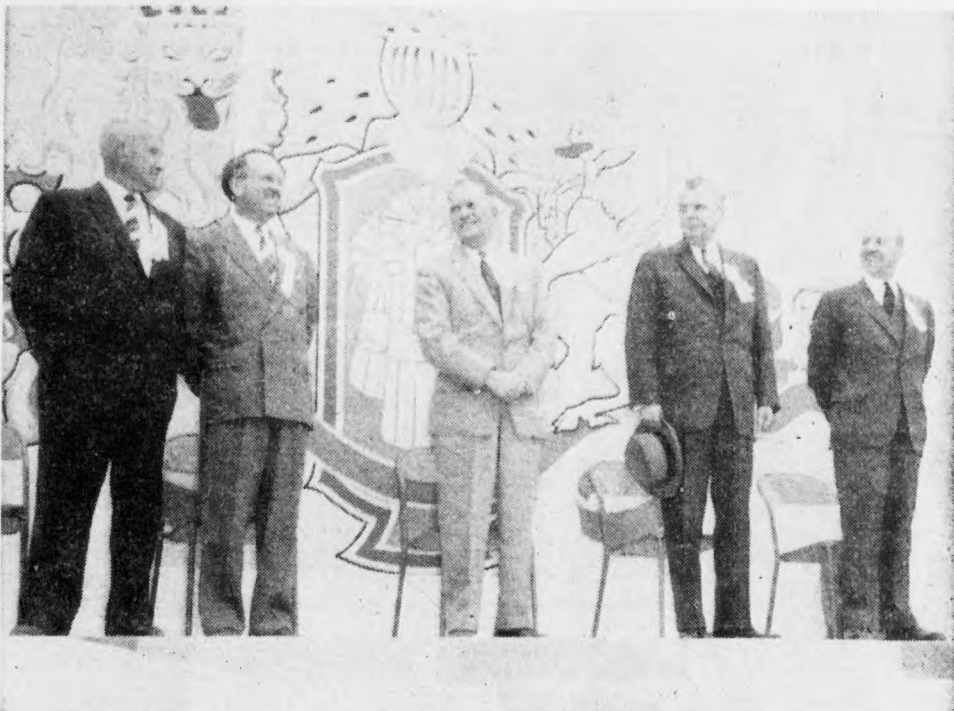

"In 1919," he went on, "a delegation to the provincial government petitioned for a dam for irrigation purposes. In 1938, M. J. Coldwell asked for a Royal Commission to investigate the feasibility of a dam. In 1944 the P.F.R.A. began planning, and from this beginning has come the signing of an agreement and the start of construction, which we are to witness today."

Almost anything goes into this one...

The Vauxhall Estate Wagon is a wonderful vehicle... because it carries so much more for so little and looks so good doing it! And the rear seat folds flat to give you even more loading space. Pile in your luggage... Vauxhall just keeps stowing it away.

There's wonderful quality here too... you can see it in the classic, straight-through lines... you can feel it in the way the Victor handles. Vauxhall has the important knack of combining a fine-car styling with superb engineering.
